

Davis Jones, 12th grade student
Paxon School for Advanced Studies

My career aspiration is to become a videographer and editor. I was placed with Client Focused Media and worked alongside their wonderful staff. While there, I learned a lot about cameras, editing, and everything they had to offer, but most importantly, I learned about myself. Completing this internship experience taught me that editing takes a lot of time and patience. It's also a lot more difficult than what I imagined. However, it is still something I am interested in doing.

While shadowing my mentors I was able to see what it's like to record a segment; similar to what's seen on tv. My tasks included changing camera angles, recording segments, researching possible clients, along with other assignments that were beneficial for both me and the company. One of my projects was to produce two videos promoting the AnnieRuth Foundation. I enjoyed working on this project because after everything the AnnieRuth Foundation did for me, it felt good being able to give back to the AnnieRuth Foundation.

Participating in the AnnieRuth Foundation's Summer Internship Program has given me so much insight on what being a videographer requires. As a result of this internship experience, I am confident in saying that I like being behind the camera. Additionally, I came to realize that although I enjoy being behind the camera, I also enjoy aspects of marketing and public relations. I owe this realization to the AnnieRuth Foundation and Client Focused Media.